GAZING INTO 1974

... might be fine if one were adept at crystal ball gazing or any one of the other methods of predicting the future.

I don't pretend to know anymore than anyone else on what the new year holds for the world, our nation, our state, our county, our city, our businesses or ourselves.

Yet, there are some directions I feel we all must take if we are to continue our present way of living. Our thinking must change in some of our areas. Our actions must change in others.

On a national scale, I feel we must begin to assert the true power we have in this world and let it be known without any doubt, that the United States of America is tired of being dictated to by a bunch of small country hoodlums who feel they can blackmail us into doing those things they want us to do.

The new year 1974 has to be the time to stand up and tell the world we have dug into our pockets so deep to finance them over the past several years that the holes are beginning to show, and it is time that we turn our attention to the needs of our own people.

We have poured billions of dollars into all countries of the world and under the guise of being a democracy have always insisted, "We can't tell them how to spend it, they must be able to use it as they see fit."

Yet, at the same time every penny that is given to Americans in any program is accompanied by a multitude of directives telling us exactly what we can or can't do. And if we don't follow those directives then the dear old Federal Government will find some other program they can cut off so they can punish us.

The on-going discussion about lowering the speed limits on our highways is a good example. The Feds say either lower the speed limits or we'll cut off millions of dollars of highway funds.

Now, I ask you, why in the hell can't they tell some foreign country either do what we want you to do about bringing about peace, cutting off oil, or what have you, or we will turn off the faucet of dollars until a penny won't squeeze through.

Congress has passed many bills during the past four years appropriating millions of dollars for worthwhile projects in our country. President Nixon has impounded the funds.

At the same time Congress has passed foreign aid bills worth millions of dollars. And what has President Nixon done? Well, you can bet your last gallon of gasoline he hasn't impounded one penny to other countries.

They still enjoy the fat pocketbook of Uncle Sam while right here at home, the people who are paying the bills for the whole dang mess are doing without better highways, improved sewage facilities, better housing, more on-the-job-training, more medical research to find cures for heart disease, cancer and other dreaded diseases.

In other words, we, the American taxpayers, are doing without while our money is still pouring into the pockets of the fat cats all over the world.

Now, I am not against helping other countries. I have been for the approximately $97 billion in foreign aid and $60 billion in military aid given since World War II.

But, as Justin Wilson says, I'll gar-ran-tee you I think it's about time to attach some strong strings--make that ropes--to every penny we give any country.

Let's tell them: "Along with this money comes an obligation by you to stop kicking our shins and stomping our toes. You'll either do what is good for the U. S. or you won't do with our money."

Now, at one time I would have agreed with those who would answer this with: "If we do that they will go over to the side of Russia."

Today, I answer: "Fine. Let Russia feed and clothe and outfit the world for a few years and they'll not have a friend left, just like us."

Right Here at Home

Domestically, in 1974, we must assert the same strong feelings on many fronts.

First, we must continue to seek better environmental protection, but not at the expense of our entire population. So we must tell

Open House winners told

Five lucky persons were winners of prizes given at the Open House last weekend for the newly located Anvil Office Equipment and Office Supplies at 1102 18th St.

Drawing of winners was made at 11:30 a.m. Saturday and the following were selected:

First Prize -- A Personal Copier, Mrs. Michael Tschirhart of Castroville; Second Prize -- Briefcase, Ramiro Ortiz of D'Hanis; Third

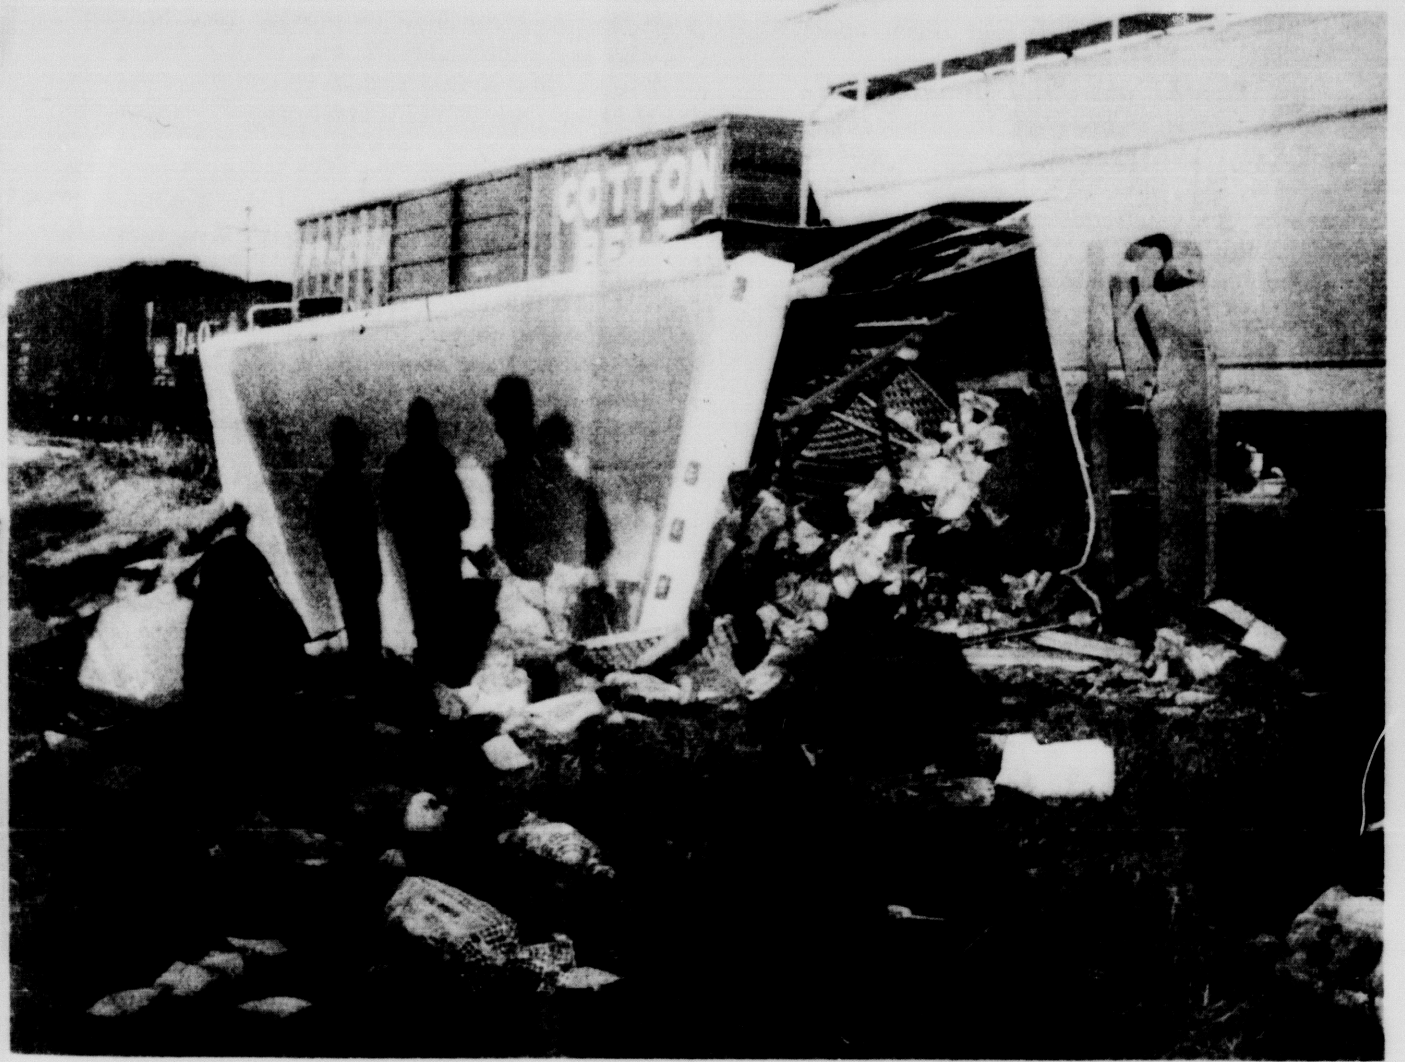

Prize -- Corning Ware, Herman Koch of Hondo; Fourth Prize -- Listfinder, Mrs. Juan Ybarra of Hondo; and Fifth Prize -- Listfinder, Tony Ledesma of Hondo.

"We appreciate all the people who dropped by to say hello and look around," said manager G. E. (Pete) Pedroza. "We believe our new location will enable us to serve you better."

A charge for engagement and wedding pictures that appear in the Anvil Herald has been announced beginning January 1, 1974.

The charge will be $3 for engagement pictures [these are one column in size] and $5 for wedding pictures [2 column in size]. "A similar charge of $5 will be made for 2 column anniversary pictures," Publisher Burnis Lawrence said.

"We also will continue the practice of classifying as advertising anniversary pictures and stories run prior to the anniversary," Lawrence said. "We have been following this practice for some time now."

Another car-train accident...

Paul Glowka's bread truck was demolished Wednesday morning at about 7:45 when a westbound freight train collided with it at the Avenue U crossing in Hondo. Although Paul was treated for minor injuries at Medina Memorial Hospital and released later Wednesday morning, the truck was ruined, its cargo of bread strewn for many feet around the wreck. [Photo by Tony Mendoza.]

AGRICULTURE
PRODUCTS CO. INC.

Medina tells of expansion plan

Out west of Hondo some three or four miles the people at Medina Agriculture Products Co., Inc., are not allowing the present energy crisis to dim their picture for 1974. "We're looking for 1974 to be a better year than any we have ever had," Arthur Franke said Friday in an interview.

And that's going some when one considers the fact that Medina sales in 1973 were 85 percent above those for 1972.

"Not only will our advertising increase," Franke said, "but it will be more widespread and more effective. And we see our market expanding to more areas within the United States as well as into foreign markets."

These foreign markets right now include Greece and Mexico. "Medina went international recently," Franke said, "when we sent a case of Medina to Greece for their testing last year. The results proved successful, and only recently we made our first shipment to that country."

The market in Mexico is being worked by Floyd Lillard, who now lives in California, but still "sells the company he has been a part of so long."

Franke said: "Mr. Lillard said he was going to retire, but he moved to California and is working harder than ever. He is negotiating with some very large farms in Mexico and we expect to ship Medina there in 1974." And after listening to Lillard, who was in Hondo for a visit, one could detect no retirement talk at all--it was all M & M-Medina in Mexico.

Inquiries about the local product certainly are international. "We have received inquiries from Yugoslavia, France, Australia, South Africa and Japan," Franke pointed out.

These are some of the reasons 1974 look bright for this Hondo firm.

And a bigger 1974 means one thing--expansion. Franke pointed out company plans by saying: "Our former production plant has been expanded by more than three times. We have another building 60 X 70 going up for container storage, and we have established two warehouses in California and stocked them with Medina. We also will more than likely hire one or two extra people early in 1974."

One can readily come up with a foregone conclusion after listening to these plans -- what is good for Medina will also be good for Hondo.

After 51 years

Jennings to close long theater career

After January 1, 1974, Hondo will officially be without a movie house.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jennings, who for the past 51 years have operated movie houses in Hondo, will retire from that business effective New Year's Day, thus marking the end of an era of movie entertainment in Hondo which spanned more than half a century.

Why close the Raye? "We're getting old," declared Mrs. Jennings, "and besides we're tired now. We want to retire and enjoy all the time we have left."

Mrs. Jennings went on to explain that the movie was offered for sale first in Hondo, so that a local person might have first option on buying out the Jennings.

But as time passed and no deal could be made, the theater was listed with a theater broker in Dallas. "That is where it rests now," the silver-haired lady smiled.

"We made up our minds to close up and retire on New Year's, regardless of whether the Raye could be sold by then. We've been operating 51 years now, and we're tired. . . we've done it long enough."

Ray L. Jennings was not the first to operate a movie in Hondo, but he was one of the pioneers.

The son of a Denison tailor, Ray Jennings had married Ruth Crow, a Hondo girl after he arrived in this city in 1920.

Following his father's trade, Ray built a tailor shop and men's store in Hondo, and was already a successful businessman by 1923.

At that time, two theaters were in operation in Hondo--the "Airdome," a sort of combination brush arbor and drive-in movie where picture shows were projected on an outside wall as viewers sat on long benches; and the early indoor theater, the "Star."

Jennings, whose father had also opened the first movie theater in Denison, decided to build a new, modern theater in Hondo.

In 1923, remodeling was finished on the "Colonial," owned jointly by Jennings and W. T. Crow. It was located about where Super Sav is today. The old Christian Church at that location had been purchased and remodelled by the two men to provide room enough for projector, screen, and patrons.

"We tore down the steeple and put in folding chairs on the flat floor of that church," recalls Jennings. Then, fondly: "We had a good system set up for cleaning. Those folding chairs were connected. Please turn to Page 3

toward improvement or a slide downward toward deterioration.

An upward turn will be difficult to obtain unless many of us melt some of the lead in the seat of our pants so that we can get up and make some effort to make our town more progressive.

I saw in the news where the city of Gonzales brought in four industries in 1973. They accomplished this through cooperative efforts on the part of the city, county, financial institutions, present industry, businesses and interested individuals.

How about us? We worked hard to organize a group to work for this purpose and had maybe a total of 18 people come to the meeting. That kind of response will get us nowhere.

Energy Crisis

Certainly, the energy crisis is going to put a kink in our plans. But we as a nation, and certainly as a city, cannot afford to let it stop us dead in our tracks.

We cannot push the panic button and do nothing.

We must push the "go" button and continue to work for the betterment of our community.

What Then?

I see 1974 a year that will bring on tighter belts. It will bring on less gross sales, but this should be accompanied by greater efforts to shave costs and thus maintain a decent margin of profit.

We'll travel less in the first eight months of 1974 since gasoline will be harder to get. But perhaps we can see more of our immediate surroundings. Perhaps we can plan activities that will help bring the community closer together, make it more like one big family.

We will see many Americans make a serious attempt to comply with the recommendations on fuel savings; and right next to them we'll see many others who will continue to live it up and disregard all suggestions.

SPARKS

the environmentalists: "You cut back on your demands and help us follow a path that will help preserve all of mankind."

We must continue to provide help for those who are unfortunate in not having enough to live as they should live in this affluent society. If they are blind, handicapped, sick, old, disabled, young dependent kids, we are obligated to provide for their needs. But at the same time, we must ferret out the deadbeats in all programs and tell them: "Get into the mainstream and swim, or sink - work or starve. We don't really care which, so you be the determining factor." Now I'm not limiting this to welfare. Poor people don't hold a monopoly on being deadbeats. There are people in every walk of life who are cheating their country.

However, this action will add another obligation to the many we already owe society. We must provide jobs for all who wish to work; and we should strive to see they have the skills to do the work.

On A Local Level

The next year can be a pivotal one for the Hondo area. We can either take a turn upward

I think we'll see some additional industry come to Hondo. I feel certain we'll see an expansion of some of our present industries.

I look for the gasoline crunch to accomplish one main good: more people will do their buying in Hondo and stay off the highways. This will improve our local tax income since the city receives 1 cent for every dollar spent in Hondo. It will help in many ways.

I think we will have a fine year-not an outstanding one-but a fine year in 1974.

And I sincerely urge every person living in this immediate area to keep the faith and remember that the American nation has gone through and overcome more serious problems than we are facing now. They have won out because of you, you and millions like you who know this to be the greatest country in the world and constantly work hard to keep it that way.

to the floor on hinges. When we wanted to sweep, we'd just turn a whole row of them forward and nothing would get in the way.

A year later the building was lengthened to hold the growing crowd of movie goers.

A new larger stage was built beneath the screen, and the floor was dug out to hold genuine theater seats.

"We had not only picture shows, but also stage shows at the Colonial," Mrs. Jennings volunteers. "There was a stock company that came here regularly and put on some mighty good productions." By 1925, Crow had sold his interest to C. W. Gilliam.

In November of 1929, the "Colonial" shut down for five days while a momentous renovation took place. Talkies had come to Hondo.

The process was known as "Syncrodisk," and it was the newest thing in movies. As the projectionist-technician showed the picture, he carefully tended a phonograph which simultaneously played the movie's sound track. It required a good deal of effort to keep actor's lips and recorded words together.

A special edition of the Anvil Herald proclaimed this quantum jump in entertainment for Hondoans. The event was really big news, for few theaters in San Antonio had made the leap into talkies at that time.

A special story admonished patrons to keep silent during the talkies since "The least whisper at the wrong time can cause a patron to lose much in the picture."

Another story warned that the Syncrodisk method was not the peak of perfection, and those patrons who had never before seen a talkie should not expect perfect sound reproduction.

Later, in 1931, when sound-on-film became available, the Jennings' traded their disk system for a newer, improved RCA sound system.

In 1938, Jennings—now sole owner of the business—built the Raye theater in downtown Hondo.

Designed by prominent San Antonio architect Bartlett Cocke, the building was of modern design, capable of seating over 525 persons. New projection and sound equipment were installed.

The four-lettered sign atop the building presented a problem concerning the name of the new theater, but John H. "Nonnie" Jennings, son of the owners, solved the problem handily. Why not, he figured, name the theater the Raye, for his father, with the extra letter added to fill out the sign? and so it was.

The really big years of movie entertainment in Hondo came of course during the war years, from 1942-45.

"In those times we ran continuous shows from 2 p.m. to midnight, seven days a week, and the show was always crowded," reflects Mrs. Jennings.

To handle the overflow, another new theater, the Park, was built by Jennings down and across the street from the Raye. It still stands today, next to Fohn's White Auto.

Moving the projection-sound equipment from the Raye to the new building, he installed the system which is still in place today.

The Park ran side by side with the Raye, as Hondoans could choose between two movies at a time. Both businesses did well.

After the war, both movies still continued to run concurrently.

But with the 50's came television, the scourge of the small-town movie houses.

"Our best years came from 1942 to about 1956," recalls Mrs. Jennings. "Then we saw it cut back, little by little."

The Park theater was closed down on December 31, 1960. Only the Raye remained.

Through the passing years, the Raye has seen fewer and fewer movies per week.

Spanish language movies, shown on Thursday nights, were ended last year as Raye cut its schedule to weekends only.

After New Years, only one movie is scheduled to be shown at the Raye.

This will be a special feature which was already contracted prior to the time the decision to close was made. It will be shown on January 20.

Then, unless someone will buy it, Hondo's last surviving movie will go by the way.

The closing of Hondo's "last picture show" shouldn't be compared to the corresponding event in Larry McMurtry's novel and the movie made from it.

Hondo isn't a dying town, and someone may yet decide the old movie house is worth reviving. Other cities have stirred family interest in movies in recent years even with television to compete against. Hondo has the same potential.

The only comparison that can be drawn is the one concerning the ending of an era. In the movie, the boys were no longer boys when the movie closed down. In Hondo, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jennings are no longer young. They've contributed 51 years to entertaining Hondoans, but can do no more. Their era is at an end. They deserved a happy retirement.

"It was hard in those days," Ray Jennings reminisced concerning the years of doing business during the Depression in Hondo. "But we loved it. And we'll miss it."

Hondo will miss you, too, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings. You can bet all the silent or sound flicks in the world on that!

All she wrote

by Edna McDade

If "one swallow maketh not summer," it took only one red-wing blackbird, winter's first scout returning from summer vacation, to make a drab December day glow for me. If one redwing comes, can the flocks that brightened the view from our kitchen window last year be far behind?

***

A 4th grade pupil in Rome requested this of one of that city's newspapers: "All I want for Christmas is a newspaper that will make my father smile. Every time he reads the paper he looks too sad."

Who could ask for anything more, even in America?

C. F. SCHWEERS told me that his initials stood for "Cat Fish" because, next to his job, he loved fishing best.

He has served Medina County long and faithfully as its County School Superintendent.

Seems that this office has now gone the way of high button shoes and suspenders, both of which did a good job.

So did C. F. Schweers. I wish him well in his retirement, which should include all the time necessary to backtrack and catch some of the big ones that got away. Tight lines!

***

From the reports I have read, the CHEER AIDERS are really contributing generously to the cheer of residents of Brown Nursing Center, who must appreciate this devoted service.

"The best of healers is good cheer," as Pindar in his Nemean Ode, wisely observed long, long ago.

The American Revolution Bicentennial which must have seemed forever and ever in the coming to those valiant patriots who started the whole thing [if, indeed, they ever had time to give it a thought] is now almost upon us.

Next week, it will be 1974. [I must practice writing the date.] Bicentennial officials from a dozen or so states have visited San Antonio to study our Texas Folklife Festival with the idea [hopefully] of considering similar statewide festivals as highlights of their Bicentennial celebration.

Although the art of sewing or stitchery in almost any form except mending, patching or darning [darn!] was not included among my dubious talents, I do enjoy looking at pattern books to see how the other half does.

I can remember when women bewailed the increase in pattern prices to sixty cents or so. This week I noted that many dress and other patterns are at least $1 and a high as $3.50 or more.

Does anyone remember the days when paper patterns "of the very latest and most modish styles" were offered at twelve [12] cents each or FREE with a one-year subscription to Fletcher's Farming, published in Hondo.

The newest waistlines in that 1923 era, were "equal to the width of the skirt." Day of the hobble skirt, remember? I do!

***

May 1974 bring you many blessings, including the escape from hobble skirts.

Sigma Tau exchange Christmas gifts

Members of Sigma Tau enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Carol Finger and Mrs. Ann Peden at the Peden home at the monthly meeting of the Sorority.

Mrs. Peden presented a very interesting program on Christmas decorations, showing some pieces made by Mrs. Finger and herself as well as professionally arranged items. Mrs. Peden explained some of their family Christmas decorating traditions as well as illustrating that from seemingly unusable odds and ends a clever and cute arrangement can be put together using a little imagination.

Mrs. Finger and Mrs. Peden served a delicious assortment of cookies, sausage rolls, cheese ball and dip with crackers and chips to the members. Topping off with traditional holiday punch bowl of egg nog, spiced tea and coffee.

Jonquil Girl, Mrs. Barbara Bohls, played Santa and passed out the Secret Sister gifts.

A wish for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year concluded the evening.

Owls win over Cotulla in district opener

Hondo took its first District 28-AA win of the season Thursday night from an outmanned Cotulla squad.

After streaking to a comfortable 37-6 halftime lead, Coach Dan Keath sent in the reserves, and the game ended with Hondo on top 57-24. Pacing the Owls with 18 points was Paul Richards, followed closely by Doug Helvey with 16.

Other Owl scorers were Brian Finger with 10 points, Tony Hackebell with 4; Gene McAnelly, Bob Spears, Bobby Rios, and Mike Groff with 2 each; and Ray Garcia with 1.

Barry Meyers led the Cowboys with his 15 point total.

Tonight Hondo will entertain the strong Antonian High School basketball team from San Antonio in a non-district game.

Friday night (tomorrow), Hondo High School gym will again be in use as the Owls continue their District schedule against Medina Valley. Game time for both the Antonian and Medina Valley contests in 6:30 for the B-Team game, with varsity contests following.

The Hondo B-Team took its first victory of the year against the Cotulla Jr. Varsity Thursday by a 53-35 score. They will also see action tonight and Friday against Antonian and Medina Valley.

The Owl Freshman team did not play against Cotulla, but they will be in action Friday night against Medina Valley.

Ligon is grid pick

Keith Ligon is one of six football players for Tyler Jr. College who were chosen to the 1973 Coaches All-Conference team.

The team, taken from among the eight schools in the Texas Junior College Football Federation, included six Tyler Apaches: three Sophomores and three Freshmen.

The 1972 Hondo graduate has seen steady duty for the Apaches all year, playing as fullback on offense and starting at linebacker on defense. This season, as a Freshman, he earned All-Conference honors for his defensive prowess.

Ligon was a standout performer for three years for the Hondo Owls.

Twenty-one Hondo Band students were named to the All-Region Band at tryouts held last Saturday in Devine. Only one other school, Tivy High School of Kerrville, a AAA school, placed more stu-dents in the Band.

Selected from Hondo were the following stu-dents: Dottie Woolls, Piccolo; Rhonda Hare, Emily Cox, Debbie Ael-voet, Diane Hartmann and Kay Schulte, Clarinets; Mariette Aelvoet, Alto Clarinet; Debbie Kren-mueller, Bass Clarinet; Jennifer Hoyt, Oboe; Linda Benede, Tenor Saxo-phone; Theresa Nira, Terri

Young and Anna Gon-zales, Trumpets; Belinda Wernette, French Horn; Lee Beard and Ken Rutherford, Baritone; Al-freda Brookshire, Trom-bone; Maurice Blackshear and Marcine Benede, Tubas; Dawna Wernette, Percussion I; and Jan Nixon, Percussion II. Seven of these students will be eligible for Area tryouts to be held in Alice on January 19th.

On January 5th, the Region Band will meet in Hondo for a Clinic and Concert under the direc-tion of Dr. George Nelson, Band Director at South- western University in Georgetown.
